Michael Corby named to Advisory Board of the Centre for Strategic Cyberspace + Security Science

New York, NY. – April 25, 2012 – Michael Corby, Vice President of Risk Solutions International and its Security Practice Director, has been named to the Advisory Board of the Centre for Strategic Cyberspace + Security Science (CSCSS).

CSCSS provides leadership in international cyber security and cyberspace affairs. The centre has built a reputation on bestowing independent and groundbreaking insights into intricate global cyberspace issues. CSCSS is a globally focused organization that offers well-defined cyberspace-based security goals for both the public-private sector and government organizations.

Michael Corby was selected to join the Advisory Board for his ability to help provide high-level intellectual guidance and strategic leadership to CSCSS as the Centre continues to demonstrate its dedication to cyber security and cyberspace strategy.

Michael's extensive background in this field includes initiating the efforts leading to the formation of the CISSP professional certification, many years of information security consulting with several global firms, executive positions, and numerous speaking and writing engagements for global organizations.

"Mike is greatly respected throughout the professional information security community as an innovator and thought leader with focus on practical, usable strategies," said Duane Lohn, executive vice president, Risk Solutions International. "His years of private sector IT security leadership and successful consulting enables him to provide welcome clarity to a field of growing concern. Organizations everywhere are coming to terms with the real risks to which they are exposed across their enterprise-scale dependency on digital assets."

Risk Solutions International (RSI) is an operational risk consulting and advisory firm. RSI provides public and private sector clients services and technology in emergency and crisis management, business continuity, IT disaster recovery and information security. As a member of the Brokerslink Alliance, the firm is supported by professional risk management resources in more than 300 offices in 70 countries.
