RISK SOLUTIONS INTERNATIONAL ANNOUNCES ENVIRONMENTAL SUSTAINABILITY POLICY

“Green” Practices Are Meaningful for Its Socially Responsible Clients

New York, NY. Risk Solutions International LLC (RSI) has published a new sustainability policy as part of its corporate citizenship objectives that minimizes its carbon footprint and responds to its clients’ preferences to do business with firms that are environmentally progressive.

As part of the policy RSI has transitioned from developing hard copy business continuity and emergency management plans for their clients to integrated web-based plans and e-document repositories, eliminating large print jobs. Similarly, it conducts a large portion of its client and business development meetings and presentations online via tools like Skype and GoToMeeting, eliminating much of the traditional air and ground transportation that adds to carbon emissions.

“We’ve learned that many of our public and private sector clients prefer doing business with firms that are socially responsible,” says managing director Scott Corzine. “So we work to keep our carbon footprint as small as possible, employing technology to more efficiently and economically deliver risk mitigation solutions to our clients.”

The sustainability practices employed by RSI go beyond recycling at its offices or ensuring the use of recycled paper in its proposals, white papers and work product. The firm invoices electronically whenever possible, and requests payment via wire or ACH to avoid paper checks. An increasing number of its proposals are submitted electronically when appropriate, and nearly all business filings are electronic as well, cutting paper use significantly.

Duane Lohn, managing director of Risk Solutions International adds that “Our clients have taught us that the environmental impact of our operations matters to them. We get very focused on how we operate on a day to day basis. We recycle all plastic proposal covers and binders. Going paperless in the back office not only supports the planet, but also moves money faster with electronic payments, both inbound and outbound wherever we can." Lohn even volunteered "As a multiple Diet Coke guy, even our can recycling program is impactful!"

Risk Solutions International is an operational risk consulting and advisory firm. RSI provides public and private sector clients services and technology in emergency and crisis management, business continuity, IT disaster recovery and information security. As a member of the Brokerslink Alliance, the firm is supported by professional risk management resources in more than 300 offices in 70 countries.
